Boy Fell Into Bonfire and Was Fatally Roasted Before Doctors Could Reach Him.

The features of the awful accident were sickening in the extreme. The child toddled out upon the lot at about 5 o'clock. He gathered up all the stray tinber visible and placed it in a pile, Then he was seen to walk away and turn into the rear gate of one of the houses overlecking the lot.

The child raised the log and thew he into the blaze. As he did so he lost his balance. He tumbled head-forement into the flames. They leaped around him and hid him from the view of the persons standing at the windows of the hospital.

An orderly came running from the reargate of the institution and dragged the hoy from the bonfire. He realized at once that the child was dying even then. He carried him into the accident room of the hospital.

Every effort was made to save the lad. His skin was frightfully scorched, hewever, and little could be done for him. The skin pealed off when touched, and the boy did not respond to restoratives. In an hour he died.
